SHORT DESCRIPTION

The Sacred Arts Week is the fruit of the International City Mission of 2007, which Budapest also joined through its sacral art together with European Heritage Days. The purpose of the festival is to demonstrate the signs of hope in culture. Through the involvement of all forms of art, the goal of the event is to illuminate Beauty, Virtue and Truth.

The largest museums of Budapest - the National Museum, the Ethnographic Museum, the National Gallery, the Museum of Applied Arts, Budapest History Museum, the Military History Museum, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Petofi Literary Museum, the Hungarian Trade and Catering Museum - the Cultural Centers have joined the The Sacred Arts Week, along with a number of smaller galleries and museums. The collections of sacral art in Budapest, Győr, Kalocsa, Székesfehérvár, Szombathely, Veszprém and Esztergom have also enriched the event with wonderful programs.

It's possible to join The Sacred Arts Week, both with original, new and existing programs which can be viewed or visited for free during the time of the festival.

We welcome the application of any artists, bands, institutions, organizations or individuals, who attempt to make the visible invisible through the presentation of Beauty and Truth and illuminate the world which is a wonderful creation of God.
